disturbed yesterday at reading the article that he at once began preparations to bring to the attention of the Shipping Board what he characterized as the "announcement of a policy of flagrant discrimination."

About 60 of the 150 coal charters recently effected were for American vessels, almost exclusively of the Shipping Board, and a serious situation would be presented if British tonnage were given the priority in loading. Mr. Martin said that no such discrimination had been practiced against British shipping when coal was exported from here to relieve strike conditions in the United Kingdom, and he also declared that there were no discriminatory provisions in the proposed subsidy bill.
